

Everyday heroes and heroines

Everyday heroes and heroines can be anyone. They could be a member of the emergency services, such as a firefighter, or a person who decides to take a risk and help someone else. They are brave and can be admired for their actions. They do not usually decide to become a hero or heroine, but become one because of their actions. They are people who make life better for others.

Charities and organisations

There are many charities and organisations that have been set up around the world to help those in need.

RSPCA
This is a charity that helps to prevent cruelty to animals and raise awareness about animal abuse.

St John Ambulance
This is a UK first aid charity that provides medical support at events and helps the NHS to respond to 999 calls.

The United Nations
This is an organisation that has around 200 countries working together to secure peace, a safe environment, human rights and equality in the world.

Shelter
This is a charity that helps millions of people who are homeless or need housing advice.

The Air Ambulance Service
This is a charity that provides 24/7 emergency medical care by air. Air Ambulance can get to hard-to-reach places and arrive faster than a Driven ambulance.
